DETAILED ACTIONResponse to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 21 November 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Claims 1-7 are pending. Applicant has amended to the claims in regards to readability and U.S. practice standards have been noted with appreciation. In regards to Applicant's arguments, Applicant generally states that the amendment of independent claim 1 to recite the limitation of the sidewalls of the duct having no holes is supported by Figure 3 of the original specification and therefore reads over the cited reference. The Examiner respectfully disagrees that Figure 3 fully supports the added feature of claim 1. While Figure 3 does not show opening in the casing, it also does not show that there are no holes anywhere that cannot be seen in the view presented. Further, nowhere in the Specification does Applicant state that duct has "no holes" or that having no holes is critical to the invention claimed by Applicant. Therefore it is the position of the Examiner that newly added feature is new matter and will be rejected as such. The Examiner further notes that Oman et al. (the cited reference) has an embodiment wherein the duct has opening that can be closed off when desired (Figure 4). Therefore, it is the position of the Examiner that the Embodiment depicted in Figure 4 and described in column 5, lines 32-48, would meet the limitation when bleed ducts are in a stored position. In regards to new claim 7, while the figures seem to support the claim language "wherein said predetermined angle is inclined at a positive angle such that a leading edge of said chord at the front end of said duct is separated a greater distance from the duct axis than a trailing edge of said chord at the rear end of said duct," the Specification will be objected to because this feature is not disclosed as shown in the Drawing.

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:

The feature of claim 7 as stated above is not disclosed in the Specification.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter, which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Specifically, Applicant claims the duct has “no holes” this is neither disclosed in the Specification nor clearly shown in the Drawings.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Oman et al. (4,075,500). Oman et al. disclose a wind power generation device comprising: a substantially cylindrical duct 50; an impeller 12 having a plurality of blades protruding outward; a pencil bodied nacelle 14 housing a generator 46; characterized in that the duct wall has a sidewall with a wing section (Figure 4) inclined at a predetermined angle to the duct axis so as to be able to produce a reduced pressure area at the rear of the duct, the tip of the nacelle being with the duct and the rear end protruding from the rear of the duct, and the tips of the blades being provided in a maximum wind speed area in the duct.

CONCLUSION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-7 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
